There is truth in what has been said on both sides. Of course there was no bargain between the Federal administration and the State administration, or between the Republican party and the Democratic party; and the attempt to create the impression that a secret and mysterious couract of this sort was made is a ridiculous waste of effort. There was, however, an understanding—not private and hidden from men's eyes, but public and as broad as the country, as clear and open as sunlight could make it—that the withdrawal of the troops from the Southern Capitals and the adoption of a new course toward the the adoption of a new course toward the South were the end of the context of reconstruction. This impression need not exist. It would be a very easy matter for the Southern leaders to break it up in a few years by simply restraining their passionate animosities, avoiding all useless excitement, and managing their political affairs with prudence, good sense, and fairness. They lost one golden opportunity after the war was over. With reasonable self-restraint and adrotiness, they could have promptly taken posession of their own Governments, and while giving ample room to Northern men sincerely and honestly identified with their new homes, could have barred out the "carpet-baggers." This they neglected, preferring the gratification of their hatred and their vanity to the service of their States and their country. The Stepping Stone to Health.

The acquisition of vital energy is the stepping stone to health. When the system lacks vitality, the various organs flag in their duty, become chronically irregular, and disease is eventually instituted. To preent this unhappy state of things, the debilitated system should be built up by the use of that inimitable tonic, Hostetter's stomach Bitters, which invigorates the digestive organs, and insures the thorough conversion of food into blood of a nourishing quality, from whence every muscle, nerve and fiber acquire unwonted supplies of vigor, and the whole system experiences the beneficial effect. Appetite returns, the system is refreshed by healthful slumber, the nerves grow strong and calm, the depondency begotten of chronic indigestion and an uncertain state of health disappears, and that sallow appearance of the skin peculiar to habitual invalids, and persons deficient in vital energy, is replaced by a more becoming tinge. The Stepping Stone to Health.

Funeral from the Presbyterian chi nio, this (Friday) afternoon at 2 o'clock. Fries of the family are respectfully invited.
